

Cameron / Camilla Palmiro AKA “Saturday”

Bank Robber for Hire and Occasional Traitor

You have been a small time criminal for several years now. Never pulled anything as big as a bank robbery before, but then again you’ve never been convicted before either. Your record is clean, and you hope to keep it that way.

At the same time, you didn’t want to spend all your life swiping cars and selling them to chop-shops. You wanted something bigger, something grander. And in the criminal underworld, that means a bank heist or similar scale job.

But bank heists are notoriously difficult to pull off. Stealing someone’s car just requires getting their keys or breaking some glass and knowing how to hotwire something. Stealing money from a bank requires being either ninja level sneaky or it requires going in with guns and taking hostages. The plan this time is to go with guns and hostages.

Normally, there would be no way you’d risk yourself on such a job. Hostage taking means you have to keep a group of total strangers intimidated, possibly for hours. And it often means some sort of standoff with the police. And you’ve seen how those movies end, too: typically the bad guys wind up in jail or shot in the head. And you happen to be those bad guys, today.

But the boss on this job, “Thursday”, has promised you that everyone will make it out clean and safe. He has some sort of inside knowledge of the bank, and says that will get you out okay. This assuaged your nerves for the early planning stages, but now you’re wondering what the mastermind’s secret plan really is. How can you get out of here alive, safe and with all that money?

Just to be sure, you’ve arranged for a backup plan: Your friend Myra Shane is supposed to be in the bank, in disguise. She’ll be taken as one of the hostages, but you’ll make sure she gets out alive. But the best part of the plan is that she’ll be disguised as a pregnant woman: when you get your hands on some of the money, the two of you will hide the money in her fake baby belly. That way, all you have to do is get out alive. And if the robbery goes off like Thursday has planned, then you get a somewhat larger share of loot than anyone else. Sounds like a win for you, either way.

Thursday’s been extremely secretive this whole time. You don’t know any of the other robbers, just their codenames: Thursday’s the leader, Monday’s the hostage wrangler, Tuesday is the safecracker and you’re “Saturday”. You’re supposed to help watch the hostages and then help move the money out.