

“Seaman” AKA Prince Tidor of Lemuria

Token Amphibious character

Your father is Nautico, the King of Lemuria-Beneath-The-Waves. That means that as long as you remain underneath the seas, you're one of the most important people in the world. But here on land, you're a nobody. A loser. Your only superpower is the ability to breath underwater. Actually, you're not that good at breathing air: if you go for more than fifteen or twenty minutes without some water, it becomes difficult for you to breath. If you go more than half an hour without water, you'll pass out and die.

So what are you doing here on the surface, anyway? You ask yourself that all the time. But ultimately, it was your father's decision to send you up onto land. You see, he was a hero once. Back in the 1940s, your dad came up to the surface and fought crime with some of the other supers that were around back then. And your dad thinks the same experience would be good for you eventually become king of Lemuria yourself. Of course, your dad could control water and create tidal waves and fly, for Neptune's sake. You can't do any of that stuff, possibly because your mother is a normal surface woman your dad married.

Anyway, your father insisted you come up top and find a spot on some superhero group. "There's always an aquatic guy on each of those teams" he says. And you won't be allowed back home until you've saved the world, or something.

Superpowers:

Amphibious. Well, mostly: underwater, you're fine. On land, you're awkward and can only survive for about a half hour before you need to dunk your head in a bucket of water or something.

Who You know:

Cell Phone Guy is supposed to be in charge around here. Cell Phone Guy is one of your better friends on land. He called you over saying something important is up. His superpower is just what the name says: he owns a cellphone. You don't have a phone, since it'd get fried once you submerged it in water.

Nestor is one of those guys who used to team up with your dad, isn't he? Oh yeah, he's the guy that disgraced your father in the surface world's eyes. Your dad never told you the details, but Nestor did something that keeps your father from showing his face above the waters. Knowing your dad, he would be awfully proud of you if you got some payback from this guy.

Roleplaying Hook:

Your amphibious nature is always causing you trouble at the most awkward times. It doesn't really come up every fifteen minutes like clockwork: instead, it manifests when would be more problematic or most embarrassing. Or funniest to you or any other player.