You are playing a news reporter at a press briefing. If the President or Press Secretary call on you, you should give your name and news agency, then you can either ask the following question or one of your own, if you can come up with a more difficult question to ask.

Bernie / Brigit Perkins

Pittsburgh Tribune-Review

How did a tiny, internationally irrelevant country like Kerzakhstan capture a state-of-the-art jet fighter from the most advanced military in the world in the first place? Why can't the most technically advanced military in the world keep track of its planes?

You are playing a news reporter at a press briefing. If the President or Press Secretary call on you, you should give your name and news agency, then you can either ask the following question or one of your own, if you can come up with a more difficult question to ask.

Everett / Edith Voynich

New York Times

What steps are you taking to see that servicewoman Weeks back? Have you spoken with her family yet, and if so what did you tell them?

You are playing a news reporter at a press briefing. If the President or Press Secretary call on you, you should give your name and news agency, then you can either ask the following question or one of your own, if you can come up with a more difficult question to ask.

Lewis / Laura Freedberg

Huffington Post

If the Kerzakhstani prime minister refuses to return the plane or Lieutenant Weeks to the United States, then what will be the US government's response be? Can we afford to get involved in another war when we are fighting two in the Middle East already? You are playing a news reporter at a press briefing. If the President or Press Secretary call on you, you should give your name and news agency, then you can either ask the following question or one of your own, if you can come up with a more difficult question to ask.

Jacob / Judith Zaria

Associated Press

We understand that the Kerzakhstani ambassador has never actually met the president or visited the White House before, despite their having established an embassy in Washington nearly a decade ago. Could earlier diplomatic gestures have prevented this from ever becoming the fiasco that it is now?