

SECRETARY OF STATE

The United States Secretary of State is the head of the United States Department of State, concerned with foreign affairs. The Secretary is the highest-ranking cabinet secretary both in line of succession and order of precedence. From the birth of the nation to 1997, only white men represented the United States on the international front; since then no white male has held the position with the tenures of Madeline Albright, Colin Powell, Condoleezza Rice and Hillary Clinton.

AGENDAS

INTERNATIONAL PRESTIGE

International prestige is the Secretary of State's concern, almost by definition. Even maverick White Houses privately recognize that it's easier to get things done if the neighbors like you.

So you need to ask yourself: what will the other countries of the world think about what you're doing? As Secretary of State, it's your job to keep the rest of the world liking America.
