

YES, AND...

We discover something valuable or helpful while doing so.

YES, AND...

We are able to get to safety for a short time.

YES, AND...

We learn something important or useful when doing so.

YES, BUT...

I'm not happy with having to save you.

YES, BUT...

Something unrelated goes horribly wrong for you.

YES, BUT...

You'll still be badly hurt in the process.

YES, BUT...

I'll get badly hurt in the process.

YES, BUT...

Rescuing you has unintended consequences.

YES, BUT...

Doing so puts myself in danger.

YES, BUT...

Doing so puts another character (neither you nor I) in danger.

YES, BUT...

You'll just get into danger immediately again.
(Describe a new danger and ask for help again.)

YES, BUT...

You'll have to sacrifice something dear to you.

YES, BUT...

I'll have to sacrifice something dear to me.

PERHAPS...

But only if you reveal a terrible secret to me.

PERHAPS...

But only if you agree to help me in my goals.

NO, BUT...

Your death will help someone else succeed.

NO, BUT...

Your death reveals important information.

NO, AND...

I'll try to save you and only get myself in danger.

NO, BUT...

Your death has unexpected consequences.

NO, AND...

Someone else is put in danger as well.

THE QUESTIONER

When important decisions need to be made in the game and no player has a clear answer for the question you ask the deck. We call this “consulting the oracles”. To consult the oracles, do the following:

- ✦ First, someone at the table identifies that there is an unresolved issue.
- ✦ You can ask a leading question, if you wish.
- ✦ You draw a card from the oracle deck.
- ✦ You hand the oracle card to another player of your choice. That player interprets the card.
- ✦ Then you hand the oracle card to a different player. The second player offers a second different interpretation.
- ✦ You will decide which one of these two answers is the true one.
- ✦ The player whose answer was not chosen receives this card as a consolation prize.